

Framework for the future

Success stories for start-up companies have moved on from the dotcom revolution. Today, there's a new generation of young firms finding their own niche in the fields of technology and design.

One & Co is such a company. Founded 10 years ago, the industrial design firm is making a name for itself in San Francisco. And its success has meant there has been a need for expansion, in more ways than one.

The firm outgrew its small office in the Mission District, in an old brick warehouse that was built at the turn of the last century. Consequently, when the other half of the warehouse became vacant, the three principals at One & Co took the opportunity to expand. The extra floor space meant they could double the size of the studio to 6,500sq ft and tailor the interior to better reflect the firm's

hide X

More images

See more office design

The former loading bay in this warehouse-turned office forms the main entry.

for the

Co, San Francisco
ernstein with
nd Tomas Rizo;
chitect, San

int:Alice Prussin

alifornia Glass
Millwork; West Bay

alli + Valli; Rixson
e:Hfele
Iron Works

by One & Co in Heath Ceramics

Artigo
Contract
ngineered rift-sawn

white oak

Veneers:Walnut by Woodcraft

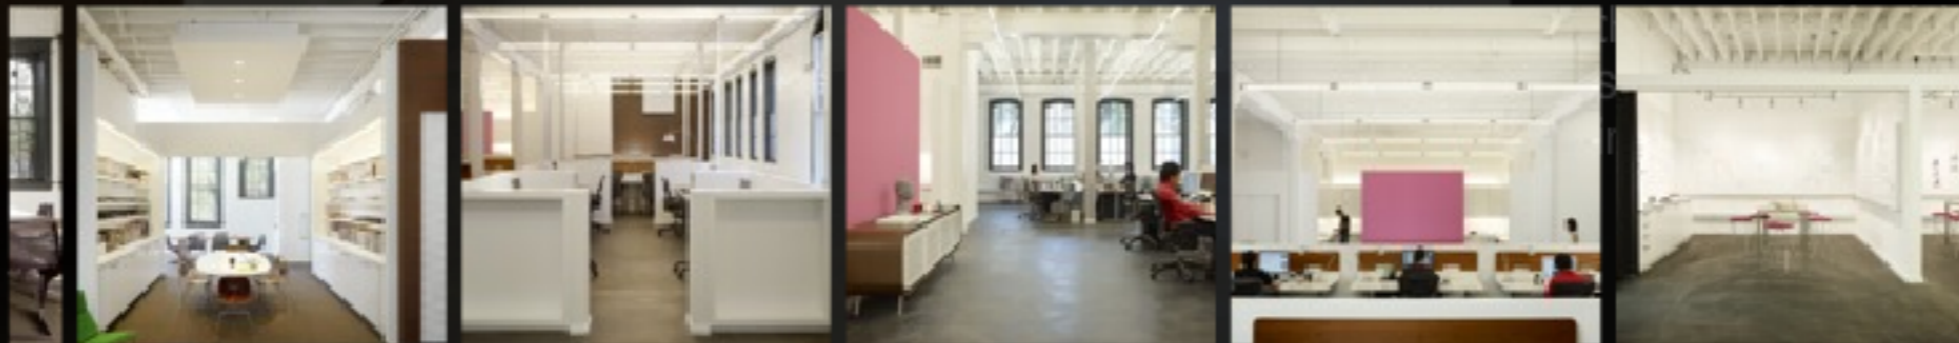

Corian
es:Formica, Forbo

More images

See more office design

Accents of hot pink enliven the interior.

for the

or start-up
moved on from the
. Today, there's a young firms finding the fields of design.

a company.
ago, the industrial aking a name for itself
And its success has een a need for e ways than one.

ts small office in the
an old brick
as built at the turn of consequently, when
e warehouse ne three principals at One & Co took the opportunity to expand. The extra floor space meant the size of the ft and tailor the reflect the firm's

hide X

More images See more office design